

ABSTRACT

A moisture-reactive hot-melt composition, useful as an adhesive, is provided that has improved balance of ultimate strength and adhesion to difficult substrates. In particular, the composition is made from a polyol, a polyisocyanate, and a functional polymer. Also provided are a method for making such compositions, a method for using such compositions for bonding substrates, and composite articles bonded with such compositions.